Brookfield, Wis.

Penta has built its ERP (enterprise resource planning) suite around three core elements: management, business process execution, and performance analysis. This suite of fully-integrated applications links multi-company financials, projects, service, labor, materials, and equipment. Document management and mobile application enhancements allow users to extend the benefits of the system to other mission-critical portions of their operations. Custom workflow automates business processes by defining, performing, and measuring key steps to the project execution process, while analytic tools allow management to monitor key performance metrics at different levels across the organization. Specific service modules can be critical to specialty contractors amid changing market conditions.
